NIXON BOOK GETS A CUBA FOOTNOTE

NEW YORK, March 28 (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's publishers said today the former Vice President has added a footnote in the second edition of his book noting President Kennedy's denial that he knowingly jeopardized the Cuban invasion during the election campaign.

Doubleday & Co. said the footnote would be added to the chapter dealing with the election campaign in Nixon's book, "Six Crises."

Doubleday said the footnote would read, in part: "Sen. Kennedy was briefed on Cuba by the CIA representatives on July 23, 1960, at Hyannis Port, Mass. Press accounts at the time characterized this briefing as a 'hot-line' withheld rundown on the two hot spots, Cuba and the Congo.' . . . However, after publication of the first edition of this book, the White House issued a statement on March 20, 1962, denying that the two and one-fourth hours briefing covered any United States operations relating to Cuba."
